DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The application has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible typographical and grammatical errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which he/she may become aware in the application.

The Information Disclosure Statements filed 03/08/04 have been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2,5,34 and 38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wincn (5,600,321).

Wincn teaches in figure (2) a multiplying digital-to-analog converter (100) comprising: a plurality of multiplying cells (200), wherein each multiplying cell is connected to a differential bias signal voltage (P_BIAS, N_BIAS); a digital input including a plurality of bits, wherein each bit is connected to a binary weighted number of said multiplying cells; a differential output (IOP, ION) connected to each of said plurality of multiplying cells, wherein a differential output current is provided as a sum of a plurality of differential output currents, at said output.

Wincn teaches the essential features of the claimed invention as set forth above except for a local differential oscillator that provides the bias signal. However, such biasing techniques to reduce errors and contain non-linearity are well known in the art of analog-to-digital and digital-to-analog converters. It would have been obvious provide the biasing signal by any means including an oscillator because the manner in which such signal is produced is not important.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3,4,6-10,35-37 and 39-41 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 11-33 and 42-53 are allowable.

Reasons For Indicating Allowability Of Subject Matter

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the prior arts of record fail to teach a multiplying digital-to-analog converter having a local oscillator that receives a continuous time local oscillator input signal, wherein a differential output signal is a product of the continuous time local oscillator input signal by a single bit of a plurality of bits of a digital input, wherein each of an input and output line has a propagation delay and all of said propagation delay are matched, and wherein a differential local oscillator current is superimposed on a DC bias level.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
